ROLE SPECIFICATION

SEPTEMBER 2023
1 Background

Established in 1881, Ridley Hall is an evangelical theological college set in spectacular surroundings in the centre of Cambridge. As part of the Cambridge Theological Federation, and with close and multi-layered links to the University of Cambridge, it provides a world-class setting for ministerial and lay training.

When Ridley Hall first opened its doors in the late nineteenth century, the student body was small. It grew from an initial eight students to a cohort of forty ordinands in the early 1900s. Since then, Ridley has trained generations of teachers, pastors, evangelists and lay leaders.

Ridley’s core commitment is to provide the substantial and challenging training that will equip the leaders of the Church to meet the ever-changing demands made upon ministry. A variety of training pathways have been developed for those called to a growing range of ordained and lay ministries.

The women and men who study at Ridley vary in age and come from a wide range of backgrounds. About half of the students are preparing for ordained ministry in the Church of England. The other half of the community is formed by students representing a range of Christian traditions and denominations.
Ridley Hall is a founding member of the Cambridge Theological Federation (CTF). The CTF was established in 1972 to bring together theological institutions in Cambridge and is now made up of twelve independent houses:

- Eastern Region Ministry Course
- Institute for Orthodox Christian Studies
- Margaret Beaufort Institute of Theology
- Ridley Hall
- Wesley House
- Westcott House
- Westminster College
- Wooff Institute
- The Faraday Institute of Science and Religion
- Westfield House
- Kirby Laing Centre for Public Theology in Cambridge
- Cambridge Centre for Christianity Worldwide

The Federation is not only inter-denominational but also inter-faith; the Wooff Institute provides a unique environment for the study of relations between Jews, Christians and Muslims.

In addition to delivering the Durham University suite of Common Awards offered in most Church of England theological education institutions, Ridley Hall is affiliated to the University of Cambridge as some of its students matriculate through the various Colleges.

2 Management of The College

The College is a registered charity and has a Board of Trustees which considers the long-term strategic vision for the College as well as having specific responsibilities, such as the appointment of the Principal.

Ridley Hall has a Senior Leadership Team who manage the College on a day-to-day basis and meet weekly in term-time. The team currently comprises:

- The Principal
- The Vice-Principal and Dean of Lay Ministry
- The Domestic Bursar

Governance

The Board of Trustees (currently comprising 15 leading individuals from business, academia, the Church, Cambridge University and the General Synod) is responsible for:

- maintaining the overall identity, principles and ethos of the College
- appointing the Principal
- approving the annual budget and overseeing the financial stability of the College
- ensuring an excellent student experience which is aligned to the academic and theological goals of the College
- ensuring policies and safeguarding practices are up to date and reviewed regularly
The Principal attends meetings of the Board of Trustees, along with the Vice-Principal and the Senior Student, but does not have voting rights.

There are three Board sub-committees, supporting the Board and Principal:

- Development focuses on partnerships and fundraising

The Principal is a member of all three sub-committees and attends as required.

3 Vision and Strategy

Ridley Hall’s origins shape everything that the College has achieved to date and forms the basis of its objectives going forward: ‘That the Good News of Jesus Christ be proclaimed to the ends of the earth so that individual lives, communities and cultures may be transformed by God’s redeeming grace’.

The current Ridley Hall strategy and priorities are rooted in our vision, mission and values.

Vision: becoming a beacon of Christian learning and formation

Mission: a community realising our calling to prepare leaders for the church

Values: excellence, community, graciousness, innovation, sustainability

Ridley Hall has set a five-year (2021–26) strategy. These strategic priorities aim to ensure the College provides excellent theological education and formation for an increasingly diverse range of lay and ordained Christian leaders in a variety of fields.

The priorities are:

1. Strive for excellence in our provision of degree level residential ordinand training
2. Strive for excellence in our provision of degree level lay ministry theological training and formation
3. Become a leading provider of online theological contextual training
4. Strive for excellence in developing our post graduate Mini-Block teaching
5. Recruit and retain an exceptional teaching, tutorial and support staff team
6. Continue the programme of building maintenance, property improvement and progress to net zero
Ridley Hall remains committed to the residential training of ordinands. However, successive strategies have widened our horizons to equip lay ministry through a variety of different pathways (formal and less formal). This means being an agile and innovative centre of learning and formation for the whole Church.

Ridley Hall is proud of its deep evangelical heritage and seeks to offer this with generosity and openness to the wider Church. The majority of our students are evangelical and we joyfully work to nurture them within this tradition, deepening their roots in Scripture and prayer. We also delight in the insights of those from other traditions who choose to learn here.

The Role of The Principal

The Principal will be an exceptional and inspirational leader with significant strategic, theological, pastoral and managerial capabilities.

They will embody the ethos of Ridley Hall and will guide and shape the College’s life as a worshipping, mission-focused community. The Principal will be credible within the academic community as well as a good ambassador and networker, able to interpret and develop further the distinctiveness of Ridley Hall.

Residing locally, the Principal will be the visible leader within the College. They will represent Ridley Hall in the national Church and will be responsible for taking forward and maintaining good relationships with other members of the Cambridge Theological Federation (CTF), dioceses across the Church of England (and especially the eastern region dioceses), Ministry Team of the Church of England, the wider Anglican Communion, and other key organisations in the evangelical world.

While upholding the values and ethos of Ridley Hall, the Principal will be a gracious person who can engage and work constructively with those who differ. They will play an active role in the leadership of the CTF, helping to shape the Federation for the future.

The Principal, along with the Finance Director and Domestic Bursar, is responsible for the financial sustainability and health of the College. The Principal reports directly to the Chair of the Board of Trustees as well as to the Board itself but has significant independence in the day-to-day running of the Hall.
The next Principal will need to:

• Be pastorally and academically credible and demonstrate excellence in teaching and preaching
• Have a working understanding of TEIs and Common Awards
• Have a grasp of the rapidly changing national landscape for theological education and Ridley’s place in it over the next decade
• Engage with the benefits and challenges of the CTF
• Have the practical experience and an external orientation to equip leaders for the renewal of the Church and the wellbeing of society
• Be able to manage effectively a capable and engaged staff team, both tutors and support staff
• Be able to inspire and nurture students and take a strategic lead on shaping formation
• Balance decisions that ensure financial stability, while maintaining functionality and good staff morale

5 Responsibilities

By personal example and presence the Principal offers a model to those training to be leaders in the Church of England. The Principal works closely with an elected Senior Student to keep abreast of morale in the community, tackling difficult pastoral situations as well as encouraging a thankful spirit in the College.

The Principal leads a cohesive, experienced and dedicated academic staff. Together, they oversee the formation of ordinands, so that they are spiritually, intellectually and emotionally ready to serve the Church of England as ordained clergy.

In addition to preparing candidates for ordination, Ridley Hall is also training those who wish to serve the Church as Children’s, Families’, Youth workers and School and Sports Chaplains. This training is primarily delivered through Ridley Lay Ministry. This training stream is overseen by the Vice-Principal who is also Dean of Lay Ministry. Teaching is provided by members of the wider academic staff team.

All Church of England theological education institutions are going through a period of change. The Principal is responsible for guiding the College through this challenge by being a secure and reassuring presence. At the same time the Principal is someone prepared to be innovative and entrepreneurial, ready to explore and develop new ways and means of training in addition to strengthening existing programmes.

Management

The Principal oversees the management of all academic staff to ensure they are thriving as individuals who contribute to the wellbeing of the institution. The College currently employs 14 tutorial staff and 22 non-tutorial staff, plus a number of contract services staff, such as for IT.
With the Domestic Bursar, the Principal is responsible for the flourishing of all support staff and the good management of the College. In collaboration with the Finance Director, Vice-Principal and Domestic Bursar, the Principal focuses on short and long-term planning, financial sustainability, student recruitment and make up, staff team (size, performance, motivation) strategic partnerships and the good ordering of the inherited estate. From time to time the Principal will have to make potentially difficult, yet strategic decisions, balancing short-term operational needs with long-term capital expenditure; investing in new versus existing programmes and managing the underlying cash flow of the organisation.

The Principal has a primary duty of reporting to the Board of Trustees through the termly meeting. This is supplemented by a weekly telephone conversation with the Chair of Trustees.

Development and Fundraising
The Principal oversees development and fundraising, which is led by a Development Manager. The aim is to stretch our horizons, maximise our effectiveness and diversify income sources. There are opportunities to build partnerships, seek grants for new initiatives and to raise funds from the friends of Ridley Hall, alumni and trust funds in this country, as well as developing links overseas. The Principal will bring fresh energy and imagination to the task of developing contacts with alumni as a prayerfully-engaged and financially-supportive fellowship.
